Course Overview

If your organization stores decision support data in DB2 for z/OS databases, your end users need an easy way to access that data both online and in batch. CA Report Facility provides an intuitive, easy-to-use interface for building reports and queries, giving online data access to end users without forfeiting any measure of control.

This course will show learners how to create queries, both temporary and permanent, from your DB2 database. Learners will see how to work with single and multiple table queries, filter data to be retrieved, and define expressions.

Learners will be engaged via conceptual content as well as hands-on interactive demonstrations.

This Course Will Show You How To:

- Explain what a query is

- Add and remove tables from a query to retrieve data

- Join multiple tables in a single query to access data contained in separated database tables

- Filter data by using WHERE clauses to focus the query on key data

- Define expressions to allow calculations on the retrieved data

- Utilize both the internal and external SQL Editors to meet the needs and skill levels of the end users

- Execute queries to collect the data
